HINESVILLE, GA. – Victory Sewing hosted a ribbon cutting in conjunction with the Liberty County Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, November 9th at their store located at 445 EG Miles Parkway, Suite 101 in Hinesville. This event was held in celebration of Victory Sewing’s new membership with the Liberty County Chamber of Commerce. Owner, Kim Stephens, welcomed customers, friends, chamber staff, board members, ambassadors, members and people from the community to this event.

“I’m so thankful to my customers. It brings me great joy to complete the unique projects given to me, I also enjoy creating my own items for sale,” Kim said. She went on to share samples of her work, including a personalized apron she created that features adjustable straps to accommodate all sizes.

Victory Sewing specializes in personalization of various objects including leather vests, military items, keepsakes, clothing and many more custom items. Much of their work is on display to spark ideas and to offer examples of design options. Also on display are items for sale, such as military-print handbags, clothing, pillows and hats.

“We welcome you to the Chamber, we are here for you and support your growing business,” said Daniel Clark, incoming Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors with Liberty County Chamber of Commerce.

Those in attendance took part in a raffle sponsored by Victory Sewing, along with homemade Korean cuisine. Guests were invited to browse through designs available and tours of the facility were conducted.

Established in 1976, the Liberty County Chamber of Commerce’s mission is to support new and existing business, trade and industry within Liberty County, while increasing the cultural, civic, educational and overall quality of life of its citizens. The Chamber and its’ 442 members are committed to enhancing the local business climate and maintaining a high quality of life in the community.
